A synopsis, umbracing the main statistical information, appeared in our telegraphic columns on Wednesday morning. We append some interesting extracts, showing the position of the Secretary on the important subject of contracting the cureency, and also a calculation as to the length of time required for paying the national debt:

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

The right of Congress, at all times, to corrow money and to issue obligations for loans in such form as may be convenient, is unquestionable; but their authority to issue obligations for a circulating medium as money, and to make these obligations a legal tender, can only be found in the un-written law which sanctions whatever the written law which sanctions whatever the representatives of the people, whose duty it is to maintain the government against its enemies, may consider in a great emergency necessary to be done. The present legal tender acts were war measures, and while the repeal of those provisions which anade the United States notes lawful mon-GEN. LOGAN WANTS to be assured that the ey is not now recommended, the Secretary is of the opinion that they ought not to issued by the head-center at New York, sgainst sundry perfidieus members of the brotherhood named in our dispatches.

The Carrency Bureau has decided that tadies cannot act as directors of Banks, inof peace, lower than the coin standard much less to perpetuate the discredit dishenors its own obligations by unnecessarily keeping in circulation an irredeem Fenian Head Center who made his escape from a Dublin jail.

Is consequence of the French invasion of Congress to furnish the people directly with money in any form. Their authority is "to coin money and lix the value thereof; and, as a mixed currency con-sisting of paper and specie, has been found to be a commercial necessity, it would seem also to be their duty to provide, as has been done by the Nationa Currency act, that this paper currency should be secured beyond any reasonable contingency. To go beyond this, however, and issue government obligations, makin them by statute a legal tender for all debt public and private, is not believed to be inder ordinary circumstances, within the cope of their duties or constitutional Owers.

The reasons which are sometimes urged a favor of United States notes as a peranent currency are, the saving of interest and their perfect safety and uniform value. ORIECTIONS TO UNITED STATES NOTES.

The objections to such a policy are, that the paper circulation of the country should be flexible, increasing and decreasing, according to the requirements of le-gitimate business, while, if furnished by the Government, it would be quite likelyst to be governed by the necessities of the Freasury or the interests of parties, rather han the demand of commerce and trade.

But the great and insuperable objection, s already stated to the direct issue of ers, and that the authority to issue notes as money is neither expressly given to Congress by the Constitution, nor fairly to be sity in a great national exigency. No consideration of a mere pecuniary character should induce an exercise by Congress lation, but it is daily increasing, and, of powers not clearly contemplated by the instrument upon which our political fabric was established. The government, in the great contest which has been recently the control of Congress, is, in the opinion closed has not sought to increase its own powers, nor to interfere with the rightful tion of the currency. powers of the States. The questions de-cided by the war are, that the Union is indissoluble; that whatever is essentially op-posed to it must be removed; that the federal authority, within its proper sphere, is supreme; and that the validity of acts of legal tender from the day of their matu Congress is not to be determined by the states, but by that tribunal which the complex character of the government made a necessity. It is the crowning glory of the Constitution that this great war has of the government being enlarged or its relations to the States being changed.

NO LONGER NECESSARY.

The issue of United States notes as law ful money was a measure expedient, doubtless, and necessary in the great emergency in which it was adopted; but this er justify a departure from that strict con-struction of the Constitution given to it Mr. Dixon of Connecticut takes the chairmanship of the Postoffice Committee, left vacant by the death of Mr. Collamer, and Mr. Pomeroy, of Kansas, that of the Public Lands Committee, formerly held by Changes or note. The committees are, as a whole, wisely constituted, and business whole, wisely constituted, and business will be rapidly transacted under their auspices.

In speaking of the legal-tender acts, reference has only been made to those which are as legal tender for their face which are as legal tender for their face value were intended to be a security rather than a circulating medium, and it would be extinguished by the like application of $100,000,000 exery six months, in a little over twenty-eight years.

The rapidity with which the government notes can be withdrawn will depend upon the ability of the Secretary to dispose of securities. We mentioned, one day last week, says the Nashville Unios, a report that Mrs. Baldwin, sister of the late General McCook, intended to visit Washington to intereste for the life of Captain Gurley.

We had the pleasure yesterday of an interview with this beautiful and accomplished lady—a worthy representative of a new of leval patriots and heroes—and learned from her that there was not the slightest foundation for the report. Find Justitis, is her motto in this case.

It is a well-established fact, which has lature:

NO DANGER IN CONTRACTION. Nor need there be any apprehen that a reduction of the currency—unless it be a violent one—will injuriously affect eal prosperity. Labor is the great source of national wealth, and industry invariably declines on an inflated currency. The value of money depends upon the manner in which it is used. If it stimulates productive industry, it is a benefit, and to the extent only to which it does this is it a benefit. If, on the other hand, it diminishes industry, and to the extent to which ishes industry, and to the extent to which it diminishes it, it is an evil. Even in the form of the precious nietals, it may not prove to be wealth to a nation. The idea that a country, necessarily rich in pro-portion to the amount of gold or silver which it possesses, is a common and natural, but an arroweous idea, while the opinion that real prosperity is advanced by an increase of paper money beyond what is absolutely needed as a medium for exchanges of real values, is so totally fal-lacious that few sane men entertain it.

whose judgment is not clouded by the peculiar financial atmosphere which an inflation is so apt to produce.

An irredeemable paper currency may be a necessity, but scarcely can fail, if, long continued, to be a calamity to any people. Gold and silver are the only measure of value. They have been made so by the acit agreement of nations, and are the necessary regulator of trade, the medium by which balances are settled between different countries and between sections of the same country. As a universal measure of value, they are a commercial necessity. A WAR ON A SPECIE BASIS .

If the war could have been prosecuted in a specie basis, there would doubtless have been a considerable advance in the price of those articles which are in de-nand by the Government; but inasmuch as in the condition of dur political affairs extensive credits could not have been esablished in Europe, the tendency in this lirection would have been kept within sonable check by the outflow of coin to other nations, which would have been the natural result of the advancin prices in the United States. On a basis of aper money, for which there is no outlet, it articles needed for immediate use, of which it is the measure of value felt and responded to the daily increase of the curney; so that rents and the prices of most ticles for which there has been a denand, have been, with slight fluctuations constantly advancing from the commence ent of the war, and are higher now, with gold at 47 per cent. premium, than they were when it was at 185. Even those which were affected by the fall of gold upon the surrender of the Confederate armies, or by the increased supply or dimin-ished demand, are advancing again to for-mer if not higher rates. The expansion has now reached such a point as to be ab-solutely oppressive to a large portion of the people, while at the same time it is the people, while at the same time it is diminishing labor, and is becoming subversive of good morals. . There are no indications of real and permanent prosperity in our large impor-tations of foreign fabrics; in the heavy Booldes, a permanent Government cur-rency would be greatly in the way of pub-the splendid fortunes reported to be made the reference to England in the President's message is rather spicy.
